

Intellectual property rules

The autonomous non-profit organization Coordination Center for TLD .RU/.PФ (hereinafter the Coordination Center) strives to comply with the current applicable laws of the Russian Federation concerning the legal protection and management of intellectual property, observing the principles of protecting the Coordination Center's own interests with regard to ownership of copyright products, as well as the interests of third parties when copyright products are used by the Coordination Center.

Any information posted on the Netoscope project website at <https://netoscope.ru/> (Netoscope, the Coordination Center's resource that provides security information and analytical material, aims at making the Russian domain space safer for users), is the Coordination Center's intellectual property, unless otherwise noted.

The logos representing the Coordination Center's project are registered trademarks as confirmed by the relevant certificates No. 599096 and No. 599097.

These logos cannot be used in any way that might suggest that the Coordination Center collaborates with a company (person) or that the Coordination Center is involved in the offering of goods, services, or events, except in cases that were specifically agreed with the Coordination Center.

To use the Coordination Center's intellectual property, the user must indicate the owner of this intellectual property and provide a link to the Netoscope project website at <https://netoscope.ru/>.

The Project's logos and other intellectual property cannot be used on websites or mobile apps that do not comply with the law, including those containing inaccurate information about the Coordination Center or its activities and (or) the Project, as well as in materials that violate intellectual rights, defame honor, dignity, or business reputation, or do not comply with the principles of the Coordination Center and (or) the Project goals.

In the event that the Coordination Center's logo or other intellectual property has been used improperly as mentioned above or for other illegal purposes, the Coordination Center reserves the right to seek the protection of its legitimate interests with law enforcement and judicial authorities.

Any person who believes that the Coordination Center's actions have violated their copyright on the Project website can report this using the feedback form on the website <https://netoscope.ru/ru/about/feedback/> and attach documentary evidence confirming the facts mentioned in the message.

If the unlawful use of the third party's copyright products is confirmed, the Coordination Center will take action to immediately terminate the activity indicated as violating others' intellectual property rights.
